COMMUNITY LAND TRUSTS

AND OTHER PERMANENTLY AFFORDABLE HOUSING MODELS IN NEW YORK CITY AND BARCELONA

The commodification of housing and neighborhoods has increasingly produced alienation and anxiety across low-and moderate-income communities in large cities. As a response grassroots and nonprofit groups have organized and demanded community-control over housing and neighborhood restructuring processes. Some cities have acknowledged these claims, as it is the case of New York City and Barcelona. This panel aims to discuss progressive housing development policies and approaches envisioned and implemented to guarantee permanent affordable housing in these two cities. Particular attention is given to community-led schemes such as Community Land Trusts and policy instruments creating non-speculative housing. The panel intends opening up a discussion among proponents of theses models, on its opportunities and challenges.

PANEL ORGANIZED BY
MS Design and Urban Ecologies
MA Theories of Urban Practice
Municipality of Barcelona

Wednesday, February 28, 2018
from 5:00pm to 7:30pm
63 Fifth Avenue, Room UL 105 (lower floor)
The New School University Center

Panel on city policies moderated by Gabriela Rendón, Assistant Professor of Urban Planning.

James Leyba, Director of Disposition
Department of Housing Preservation and Development

Jenny Yang, Program Officer
Enterprise Community Partners

Josep Mª Montaner, Barcelona Housing Commissioner
Municipality of Barcelona

Panel on housing cooperatives and CLT efforts and experiences moderated by Miguel Robles-Durán, Associate Professor of Urbanism.

Christie Peale, director of Center for NYC Neighborhoods representing Interboro CLT, a partnership of the Center for NYC Neighborhoods, the Urban Homesteading Assistance Board (UHAB), the Mutual Housing Association of New York (MHANY), and Habitat for Humanity NYC.

Tom Angotti, Community Planner, Professor Emeritus at Hunter College's Urban Policy and Planning Department and the Graduate Center (CUNY), and Board Chair at Cooper Square CLT representing Cooper Square CLT.

Lynn Lewis, Housing activist and former director of Picture the Homeless representing, as board vice-president, the East Harlem/El Barrio Community Land Trust

Deyanira del Rio, co-director of New Economy Project representing the New York City Community Land Initiative, in partnership with the New Economy Project.

Eduard Cabré Romans, Barcelona Department of Housing presenting the case of La Borda Cooperativa d'Habitatge en Cessió d'Ús.

THE NEW SCHOOL
URBAN@PARSONS